

Decorative
brush-
stroke

—

MASTERING THE BUSINESS OF HAIRSTYLING

"Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for human masters."

— Colossians 3:23

Introduction

Picture this powerful scene: You stand poised behind your styling chair, ready to transform a simple canvas of hair into a masterpiece. As you begin to weave your magic, a sudden thought invades—are your business skills as sharp as the tools in your hands? In the fast-paced world of hairstyling, where artistry and entrepreneurship dance an intricate duet, mastering the business side is as essential as perfecting your hands-on craft. The key to a flourishing, sustainable career lies in mastering both the creative and financial aspects, allowing your creativity to soar while securing the financial stability and growth you richly deserve.

The psychology of business mastery in hairstyling involves a unique mindset—a blend of creativity, strategy, passion, and purpose. This chapter explores how aligning a love for hairstyling with sound business strategies can transform your career into a thriving, purpose-driven enterprise. We'll guide you through setting income goals that align with your values, diversifying revenue streams, crafting unforgettable client experiences, and utilizing technology—all crucial elements for moving from mere survival to true success in the industry.

Whether you're new to freelancing or an experienced pro seeking growth, this chapter will help you rewire your mindset, enhance your skills, and unlock your potential as a hairstyling business owner. Let's dive into the strategies that will empower you to master both the art and the business of hairstyling.

1. Financial Management for Hairstylists

---

Mastering financial management is essential for sustainable success in the hairstyling business. This section covers setting income goals that align with your personal values, implementing effective accounting and financial tracking, and diversifying your revenue streams for stability. Let's dive into each of these strategies.

1.A. Setting Income Goals Aligned with Personal Values

Financial goals for a hairstylist should go beyond arbitrary numbers; they should be deeply rooted in your personal and professional values. Start by reflecting on what truly matters to you: Are you seeking financial freedom, the ability to give back to your community, or a work-life balance that enhances your lifestyle?

Values-driven income goals help anchor your career to a purpose. For example, if community impact is a priority, you might decide to allocate a portion of your profits to local causes or offer discounted services to underserved populations. If financial security is your focus, you may aim to build a savings cushion that provides stability, regardless of industry fluctuations.

Actionable Steps:

- Identify Core Values: Reflect on what you value most—whether that's financial independence, community impact, or career longevity.
- Translate Values into Income Goals: For example, if financial security is a key value, set a specific target for savings, emergency funds, or income diversification over the next 1–5 years.
- Create a Vision Board or Goal Manifesto: Use images, quotes, and income targets to visually connect your goals with your values. Keep this vision board where you can see it daily for motivation.

Aligning my financial goals with my personal values was a transformative turning point. Early in my career, I chased revenue without a clear connection to my deeper creative ambitions. When I began setting income targets that resonated with my core values—authenticity, creativity, and community—I reimagined my entire approach to business. This shift allowed me to price my services in a way that truly reflected who I am, attracting clients who valued that same authenticity. The result was a more fulfilling, purpose-driven practice that balanced financial success with personal satisfaction.

1.B. Implementing Accounting Systems and Financial Tracking

After defining income goals, create a system to track your earnings and expenses, helping you manage cash flow effectively. For independent stylists, accurate recordkeeping is vital for identifying profit trends, understanding expenses, and planning for taxes.

Choose a system that matches your business's complexity and scale. Options range from simple spreadsheets for those starting out to robust accounting software like QuickBooks or Xero, which offer tools for invoicing, tracking expenses, and generating financial reports. By maintaining meticulous records, you gain a clear view of your business's financial health and can make informed decisions.

Actionable Steps:

- Select an Accounting Method: Evaluate options such as manual spreadsheets or software programs (QuickBooks, Xero) based on your needs.
- Commit to Weekly Financial Reviews: Set aside time weekly to update records, monitor expenses, and review income.
- Develop a 12-Month Cash Flow Projection: Use your historical data to forecast income and expenses, adjusting as needed to align with your income goals.

1.C. Exploring Diverse Revenue Streams for Stability

To build resilience in your business, consider diversifying your revenue streams beyond standard client services. This can provide a buffer during slower periods, allowing for a more stable income. Some successful hairstylists expand by selling products, teaching workshops, creating digital content, or offering specialized services.

Evaluate market demand and your strengths to identify complementary revenue streams that fit your brand. For example, if you specialize in color treatments, offering color-care products or tutorials on maintaining color at home can create additional income and support your primary services.

Digital Revenue Opportunities: Today's hairstylists can expand their reach beyond the physical salon through digital offerings. Consider creating online tutorials, membership sites with exclusive content, virtual color or style consultations, or digital courses teaching specialized techniques. These digital extensions of your expertise can serve clients regardless of geographic limitations and create passive income streams that work for you even when you're not behind the chair.

Actionable Steps:

- Identify Potential Revenue Streams: Consider products or services that naturally align with your hairstyling practice, such as product sales, online tutorials, or styling workshops.

- Conduct Market Research: Assess demand, pricing, and competition for each potential revenue stream to prioritize the most viable options.
- Plan a Test Launch: Roll out one new revenue stream in a controlled test phase with clear success metrics. Adjust based on client feedback and financial performance.
- Develop a Digital Extension Strategy: Create a plan for offering virtual services or digital products that complement your in-person offerings.

2. Building and Maintaining Client Relationships

---

In hairstyling, your relationships with clients are at the heart of your business. Beyond delivering high-quality services, understanding your clients' unique needs and preferences fosters loyalty, trust, and satisfaction, which can translate into referrals and long-term business growth. This section covers strategies to understand client archetypes, design personalized service experiences, and use CRM software for effective communication.

2.A. Understanding Client Archetypes and Motivations

Clients come to stylists with different motivations, needs, and personalities. Recognizing these patterns can help you better anticipate their expectations and create an experience tailored to their preferences. Common client archetypes may include "Trendsetters" eager to try new styles, "Minimalists" who seek simple and manageable cuts, or "Reassurers" looking for trusted advice to solve specific hair challenges. By segmenting your clients, you can address each group's unique priorities and enhance their overall experience.

For example, a Trendsetter may respond well to a stylist who offers creative suggestions, while a Minimalist might appreciate guidance on low-maintenance hairstyles. Understanding these archetypes also helps in preparing targeted communication that resonates with their individual needs.

Client Archetype Framework:

Arche-type	Key Charac-teristics	Service pro-ach	Ap- proach	Communic-ation Style
Trend-setter	Fashion-forward, open to change, media savvy	Offer newest techniques, social suggest ions	Visual, trend-focused, creative options	Enthusiastic, clear, positive
Minimalist	Values simplicity, prioritizes low maintenance, practicality	Focus on durability, resiliency	Concise, emphasize longevity	Clear, direct, and simple
Reassurer	Cautious about changes, seeks expert guidance, loyalty	Thorough consultations, gradual changes	Detailed explanations, reassuring	Educational, empathetic
Transformer	Seeking significant change, often at life transitions	Comprehensive consultations, dramatic results	Empathetic, affirming, celebratory	Consultative, dramatic, celebratory
Luxury Seeker	Values premium experience, amenities	Enhanced amenities	Sophisticated, focused	Experiential, focused

Arche-type	Key Charac-teristics	Service proach	Ap-Communication Style
	less price-sensitive	clusive products	on quality and exclusivity

Actionable Steps:

- Identify Key Client Archetypes: Review your existing clients and group them into 3-5 archetypes based on their common preferences and motivations.
- Develop Profiles for Each Archetype: Include key details like demographics, style preferences, typical requests, and their approach to hair maintenance.
- Adjust Service Offerings to Fit Each Archetype: Tailor consultations, product recommendations, and styling suggestions to meet the specific desires and concerns of each client type.

2.B. Designing Personalized Service Experiences

Once you understand client archetypes, the next step is to enhance each touchpoint in the client journey to make every interaction memorable. Personalization can set you apart, as clients feel valued and appreciated when their stylist remembers their preferences and goes above and beyond in providing care.

Design your client journey to include thoughtful touches from appointment booking to aftercare advice. Simple actions, such as offering a custom aftercare plan or a follow-up message after a major style change, can significantly enhance client satisfaction and strengthen loyalty.

Actionable Steps:

- Map Out the Client Journey: List all stages of interaction from booking to follow-up, identifying areas to add personal touches.
- Create a "Wow Factor" for Each Archetype: Develop a special touch for each client type (e.g., product samples for Trendsetters, care tips for Reassurers).
- Train Staff for Consistency: Ensure your team understands and contributes to delivering a consistent and personalized experience for each client.

I vividly remember a time when going the extra mile for a client made all the difference. One client came in during a particularly emotional period as she prepared for a major life event. Instead of offering a standard service, I took the time to understand her vision and the emotions behind it. I customized her experience down to the finest details and even followed up with a handwritten note after her event. This personalized approach not only made her feel uniquely cared for but also led to a ripple effect of referrals. It was a powerful reminder that investing in genuine, heartfelt service can dramatically improve both client relationships and business growth.

2.C. Utilizing CRM Software for Targeted Communication

As your client list grows, keeping track of personal details and preferences for each individual can become challenging. Customer Relationship Management (CRM) software can organize and streamline client data, helping you maintain personalized communication. A CRM allows you to track each client's history, preferences, and hair needs, providing insights that enable targeted outreach for promotions, follow-ups, and reminders.

For instance, if a client regularly books color services, you can send automated reminders about touch-up appointments or promotions on color-safe products. CRM tools like Salesforce, HubSpot, or salon-specific software like Mindbody can centralize this data, making it easier to enhance each client's experience.

Actionable Steps:

- Select a CRM Platform: Research options that best suit your business size and budget, considering features like appointment scheduling, client history tracking, and automated messaging.
- Build Detailed Client Profiles: Store key details in each client profile, such as color formulas, past treatments, preferred styles, and communication preferences.
- Create a Communication Plan: Use CRM features to automate relevant communication, like birthday messages, appointment reminders, or product recommendations based on past purchases.

3. Marketing Your Hairstyling Business

---

An effective marketing strategy is crucial to building a successful hairstyling business. By establishing a strong brand identity, creating valuable content, leveraging digital platforms, and collaborating with local businesses, you can attract new clients and retain loyal ones. This section covers actionable techniques to elevate your business's visibility and strengthen your brand presence.

3.A. Developing a Strong Brand Identity

A distinctive brand identity helps you stand out in a crowded market. Your brand should reflect who you are as a stylist, the values you uphold, and the experience you aim to provide. Branding goes beyond visuals—though a logo and cohesive color scheme are important; it encompasses your personality, the quality of your work, and your unique service approach.

Consider what makes your business unique, whether it's a commitment to eco-friendly products, expertise in textured hair, or a focus on precision cuts. Crafting a brand story that communicates these values will attract clients who resonate with your approach.

Actionable Steps:

- Define Your Unique Value Proposition (UVP): Identify what sets your services apart and appeals to your ideal client base. Describe the specific benefits clients gain from working with you.

- Create a Brand Style Guide: Develop a style guide that includes your logo, colors, fonts, and tone of voice, ensuring that your brand is visually and tonally consistent across all platforms.
- Audit Your Online Presence: Review your website, social media, and marketing materials to confirm they consistently reflect your brand's personality, values, and UVP.

3.B. Creating Compelling Content and Portfolios

High-quality content is essential for engaging potential clients and building credibility as a hairstyling expert. A strong portfolio showcases your skills, versatility, and expertise in a way that attracts your target audience. Content like before-and-after photos, video tutorials, and behind-the-scenes shots can demonstrate your capabilities and provide insight into your styling process.

Aim to educate and inspire with your content, offering valuable tips on hair care, styling techniques, or trend insights. This approach not only highlights your skillset but positions you as a trusted resource for clients.

Actionable Steps:

- Curate a Content Calendar: Plan a schedule for sharing different types of content, such as transformations, client testimonials, and hair care tips, across your website, blog, and social media.

- Invest in Quality Photography and Video: Use professional equipment or hire a photographer to capture high-resolution images and videos of your work, ensuring your portfolio appears polished and professional.
- Leverage Client Testimonials: Share client testimonials and stories as part of your content to build trust and showcase your impact on clients' confidence and satisfaction.

3.C. Leveraging Social Media and Digital Channels

Social media offers a powerful platform to reach new clients, stay connected with current ones, and build a community around your brand. Platforms like Instagram, Facebook, and Pinterest allow you to showcase your work, interact with clients, and attract followers interested in your services.

By sharing relevant, high-quality posts and engaging with followers, you can establish a compelling online presence. Paid ads on social media can also help you reach new audiences who align with your target demographic, directing traffic to your booking site or salon.

Beginner-Friendly Social Media Approach:

1. Start With One Platform: Focus on mastering a single platform (typically Instagram for hairstylists) before expanding.
2. Create a Content Framework: Establish a simple posting pattern (e.g., Monday: inspiration, Wednesday: technique tips, Friday: client transformations).
3. Use Simple Tools: Utilize user-friendly apps like Canva for graphics and Planoly for scheduling posts.

4. Engage Authentically: Respond to comments and messages promptly and personally.
5. Track Basic Metrics: Monitor which types of content receive the most engagement and adjust accordingly.

Actionable Steps:

- Optimize Your Social Media Profiles: Ensure each profile clearly states who you are, what you offer, and how clients can book with you. Use your brand colors, logo, and UVP consistently.
- Engage with Your Audience: Respond to comments, answer questions, and interact with followers' content to foster a community and build relationships with potential clients.
- Experiment with Paid Advertising: Consider running ads targeting your ideal clients, focusing on key services, seasonal promotions, or branded events to attract bookings and awareness.

My journey into social media was one marked by honest hesitation and gradual discovery. Initially, I doubted whether my creative process and authentic voice could shine amid the crowded digital landscape. I observed others who had successfully built vibrant communities online, yet I felt uncertain about finding my own path. During the pre-launch and post-launch of my eBook, I began experimenting—sharing behind-the-scenes glimpses, candid moments, and even my occasional missteps. While the process was challenging, each step taught me valuable lessons about genuine engagement. Today, I'm still in the process of discovering and refining my digital presence, but every interaction brings me closer to building a community that values authenticity over perfection.

3.D. Collaborating on Events and Experiences

Collaborations and events can expand your reach, introduce you to new audiences, and strengthen your professional network. Teaming up with complementary businesses—such as makeup artists, photographers, boutiques, or wellness centers—creates opportunities to showcase your skills in unique settings and attract clients who might otherwise not encounter your brand.

Collaborative events can include styling demos, pop-up salon services, or workshops on hair care and styling tips. Choose partnerships that reflect your brand's values and aesthetic to ensure a natural alignment with your ideal clientele.

Regional Marketing Adaptations: Your marketing strategy should be tailored to your specific geographic context. In metropolitan areas, highlight your distinctive specialization to stand out in a competitive market. In suburban or rural communities, emphasize community connections and accessibility. Consider how pricing and service offerings might need to be adjusted based on your local market's economic conditions and client expectations.

Actionable Steps:

- Identify Potential Collaboration Partners: Look for businesses or professionals who share similar values and serve an overlapping client base, such as fashion boutiques, wellness brands, or local influencers.
- Plan an Event or Experience: Brainstorm collaborative ideas like a styling demo, wellness day, or client appreciation event that will engage both your audiences.
- Document and Share the Experience: Capture photos and videos from the event to share on social media, tagging your partner to maximize reach and engagement.
- Conduct Local Market Analysis: Research pricing standards, competitive offerings, and client demographics in your area to optimize your marketing approach for your specific region.

3.E. Case Study: Marquette Breslin - Building a Thriving Lace Wig Business

Marquette Breslin's journey offers an inspiring and instructive example of how hairstylists can turn a niche service into a full-fledged business and personal brand. Known for her expertise in lace wig creation, Breslin not only established a reputation for her craftsmanship but also empowered others by sharing her specialized knowledge through education.

From Stylist to Specialist

Initially a traditional hairstylist, Breslin observed a growing need among clients experiencing hair loss due to medical conditions and other factors. Her solution was to create high-quality, natural-looking lace wigs that offered clients more than just hair—they offered emotional and physical transformation. Recognizing the personal and transformative nature of this service, Breslin dedicated herself to mastering the nuances of lace wig creation, investing significant time in learning intricate techniques such as ventilating, coloring, and custom styling.

Breslin's approach was deeply client-focused. She understood that her work involved more than just technical expertise; it required empathy and insight into the lives of her clients, many of whom were navigating the challenges of hair loss. This client-centered dedication contributed to her strong reputation and differentiated her in a competitive market, establishing Breslin as a compassionate, trusted specialist.

Scaling Through Education

Recognizing an opportunity to share her expertise with other stylists, Breslin launched an online training program in 2006 focused on the art and business of lace wig-making. Her program, Lace Wig University, includes video tutorials, templates, support, and business guidance. This innovative educational platform allowed her to reach a global audience, offering stylists the tools and knowledge needed to expand their skills and build businesses in the lace wig market. By packaging her expertise into online courses, Breslin successfully diversified her revenue streams, generating passive income while expanding her influence and impact.

Breslin's training program has empowered stylists worldwide, providing them with a pathway to build careers based on high-quality, compassionate wig services. Today, her educational reach has grown significantly, and her program remains a key resource for stylists interested in this specialized field. The success of Lace Wig University demonstrates the scalability of educational products, enabling hairstylists to extend their impact far beyond the salon.

Lessons Learned

Breslin's career journey highlights valuable lessons for freelance hairstylists aiming to establish sustainable, impactful businesses:

1. Specialization: Breslin's success underscores the power of finding a unique niche. Specializing in lace wigs allowed her to address a specific market need, distinguishing her from other stylists and positioning her as an industry expert.
2. Education: Continuous learning and skill development elevated Breslin's service quality, building her credibility and enabling her to create educational resources that benefited others.
3. Scalability: By transforming her knowledge into online courses, Breslin multiplied her influence and income potential beyond what was possible through one-on-one client services alone.
4. Branding: Establishing a strong online presence helped amplify Breslin's brand, attracting a loyal client base and opening doors for partnerships and collaborative opportunities.

Whether you're considering launching a product line, creating an educational platform, or developing a niche service, Breslin's journey offers a blueprint. Her example shows that with focus, dedication, and strategic thinking, it's possible to turn a hairstyling skill into a transformative, sustainable business.

3.F. Building Economic Resilience in Your Business

The hairstyling industry is subject to economic fluctuations that can impact client spending patterns. Creating a recession-resistant business model helps ensure stability during economic downturns while positioning you for growth during prosperous periods.

Strategies for Economic Resilience:

- Tiered Service Offerings: Create service packages at different price points to accommodate clients across various budget ranges.
- Emergency Fund: Maintain a business savings account with 3-6 months of operating expenses.
- Flexible Scheduling: Consider offering extended hours or alternative scheduling options to accommodate clients with changing work situations.
- Value-Added Services: Develop services that help clients extend the life of their styles, providing better value during tight economic times.
- Subscription Models: Create membership or package deals that provide steady income through recurring revenue.

By implementing these practices, you can create a business that withstands economic challenges while continuing to provide exceptional value to clients regardless of market conditions.

4. Conclusion: Crowning Your Passion with Prosperity

---

As we conclude this chapter, it's clear that mastering the business of hairstyling involves far more than simply honing technical skills. True success in this field requires a dynamic blend of artistry, entrepreneurial acumen, and unwavering dedication to personal and professional growth. In each of the strategies covered—from aligning income goals with values, maintaining strong client relationships, and building a memorable brand to diversifying income streams and managing finances—you now have a roadmap to propel your business forward.

The essence of hairstyling as a business lies in adaptability, resilience, and a commitment to continuous learning. Embracing these qualities, and staying attuned to the ever-evolving needs of clients and industry trends, will guide you toward not just a sustainable career but one that flourishes. By remaining true to your unique vision, nurturing your relationships, and welcoming innovation, you position yourself as a transformative force within the industry.

Whether you are in the early stages of your career or looking to redefine your path, remember that the business of hairstyling is a journey—a creative and entrepreneurial endeavor where every challenge is an opportunity. The tools, insights, and strategies provided in this chapter are designed to support your ambition to not only succeed but to elevate your craft, your business, and, ultimately, your life. So, embrace your journey with confidence and joy, knowing that your passion for hairstyling is both your gift to the world and the foundation of a prosperous future.

Embracing these interconnected business practices has truly redefined my career. By aligning my income goals with my personal values, delivering tailored, heartfelt client experiences, and stepping into the digital world with vulnerability and curiosity, I've achieved not only enhanced profitability but also deep personal fulfillment. Every strategy reinforces the other, creating a holistic business model that feels both sustainable and true to my creative spirit. Ultimately, this journey has taught me that success is best measured by the balance of financial growth and the joy of living authentically every day.

Key Takeaways

1. Mastering hairstyling as a business requires a blend of technical skill, financial knowledge, and an entrepreneurial spirit.
2. Setting income goals aligned with your values, managing finances, and diversifying income are keys to a sustainable career.
3. Designing personalized client experiences and nurturing strong relationships help you stand out in a competitive market.
4. Developing a compelling brand identity, creating valuable content, and leveraging digital marketing channels are powerful ways to attract and engage clients.
5. Business mastery is a marathon, requiring ongoing learning, adaptability, and resilience to thrive in a dynamic industry.

Endnotes

---

1. Albert Bandura, Self-Efficacy: The Exercise of Control (New York: Worth Publishers, 1997), accessed March 8, 2025, <https://www.uky.edu/~eushe2/Bandura/Bandura1997EP.pdf> (<https://www.uky.edu/~eushe2/Bandura/Bandura1997EP.pdf>).
2. Carol S. Dweck, Mindset: The New Psychology of Success (New York: Random House, 2006).
3. Intuit, "QuickBooks Online," 2023, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://quickbooks.intuit.com> (<https://quickbooks.intuit.com>).
4. Modern Salon, "Revenue Diversification Strategies for Freelancers," 2021, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://www.modernsalon.com/revenue-diversification> (<https://www.modernsalon.com/revenue-diversification>).
5. Kevin Lane Keller, Strategic Brand Management (Upper Saddle River, NJ: Prentice Hall, 2003).
6. Salesforce, "Salesforce CRM for Small Businesses," 2023, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://www.salesforce.com> (<https://www.salesforce.com>).
7. Hootsuite, "Social Media Marketing Best Practices," 2023, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://hootsuite.com/resources/social-media-marketing> (<https://hootsuite.com/resources/social-media-marketing>).
8. Marquette Breslin, "Building a Thriving Lace Wig Business," WWD, 2018, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://wwd.com/beauty-industry-news/hair/marquette-breslin-profile> (<https://wwd.com/beauty-industry-news/hair/marquette-breslin-profile>).

9. Salon Business Journal, "Economic Resilience Strategies for Hairstylists," 2022, accessed March 8, 2025, <https://www.salon-businessjournal.com> (<https://www.salonbusinessjournal.com>).

Chapter Quiz

1. The chapter's "Wake-Up Call" anecdote emphasizes what critical business lesson?

- A) You can succeed on talent alone without business skills
- B) Understanding financials, pricing strategy, and business fundamentals is essential for sustainable success
- C) Business education is only for salon owners, not freelancers
- D) Keeping prices low is the only way to stay competitive

2. According to Rachel's Financial Transformation case study, what changed her business trajectory?

- A) Working more hours
  - B) Moving to a wealthier neighborhood
  - C) Implementing strategic pricing, understanding her numbers, and valuing her expertise appropriately
  - D) Copying competitors' pricing exactly
- 3. When marketing your hairstyling business authentically, the chapter recommends:

- A) Exaggerating your capabilities to attract clients
- B) Copying viral marketing trends without adapting to your brand
- C) Aligning your marketing with your values, showcasing real results, and connecting with your ideal clients
- D) Avoiding marketing entirely and relying only on word-of-mouth

4. What does the chapter identify as key to scaling your business sustainably?

- A) Saying yes to every opportunity regardless of capacity
- B) Strategic systems, delegation, maintaining quality, and aligning growth with your values and capacity
- C) Rapid expansion at any cost
- D) Never raising prices or changing your business model

For answers, see the Quiz Key in the backmatter.

Chapter Worksheet

Reflection Questions:

Take time to consider how this chapter's concepts apply to your own experience and practice.

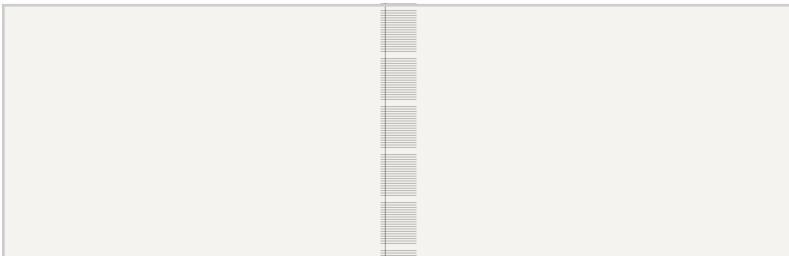

- 1. Conduct a financial health check: Do you know your actual costs, profit margins, and revenue goals? List what financial metrics you need to start tracking this month.

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin gray border, designed for handwritten or typed responses to the first reflection question.

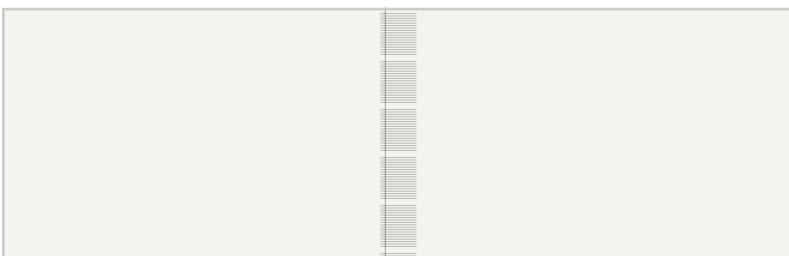

- 2. Evaluate your current pricing strategy. Are your prices aligned with your expertise, market, and business goals? If not, what adjustments do you need to make and when?

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin gray border, designed for handwritten or typed responses to the second reflection question.

3. Define your marketing message: What makes your services uniquely valuable? Who is your ideal client? How will you reach them authentically?

4. Envision your business 3 years from now. What does sustainable success look like for you? What systems, support, or changes do you need to implement to get there?

Inspirational quote: Believe in yourself and all that you are. Know that there is something inside you that is greater than any obstacle.

Chapter VI Closing